

Line of Reasoning Infographic Posters

Today you will put your knowledge about the parts of an argument in to play to establish your own line of reasoning. As a group you will establish your own line of reasoning around an issue you care about. Think back to the assignment where we built weak and strong arguments for inspiration. Your line of reasoning must feature the following components:

- A minimum of three strong claims but no more than five claims
- Evidence from reputable journalistic sources (magazines, newspapers, journalistic websites)
- A summary of how the evidence supports the claim (reasoning) that is no more than two sentences per claim)
- A visual representation of the connections between claims

You will draft your argument on notebook paper and then create a poster which represents the argument in a visually stimulating infographic. The final product to be submitted will be a poster.

Infographic Example:

