

Name:

Class:

PAT II Stimulus Materials Analysis: Introduction

Instructions: Use the stimulus materials for Performance Assessment Task II to complete this assignment. The stimulus materials may be found in digital portfolio in the section for Performance Assessment Task II. In order to prepare for the development of an individual research question you must become familiar with all six sources. You will not need to be an expert in all six sources but you will need some familiarity with all six sources. Your work should be completed in pen and in complete sentences where appropriate.

Title of Source:
Key Concepts/Main Ideas As you look over the material what are the “big ideas” that help make the source meaningful? How would you explain the source to someone who has not read the material?
Possible Themes Identify at least three possible themes which could be connected to this one source. This response should be specific to this one source.
Discipline Which field of study would this source fall into at a university? What types of professionals would investigate a question about this source? Explain your responses.
Possible Connections to Other Sources In what ways is this source possibly connected to other sources in this packet? Explain your responses.
Questions Using the first stage of the Question Formulation Technique create five possible questions about the source.

Title of Source:
Key Concepts/Main Ideas As you look over the material what are the “big ideas” that help make the source meaningful? How would you explain the source to someone who has not read the material?
Possible Themes Identify at least three possible themes which could be connected to this one source. This response should be specific to this one source.
Discipline Which field of study would this source fall into at a university? What types of professionals would investigate a question about this source? Explain your responses.
Possible Connections to Other Sources In what ways is this source possibly connected to other sources in this packet? Explain your responses.
Questions Using the first stage of the Question Formulation Technique create five possible questions about the source.

Title of Source:
Key Concepts/Main Ideas As you look over the material what are the “big ideas” that help make the source meaningful? How would you explain the source to someone who has not read the material?
Possible Themes Identify at least three possible themes which could be connected to this one source. This response should be specific to this one source.
Discipline Which field of study would this source fall into at a university? What types of professionals would investigate a question about this source? Explain your responses.
Possible Connections to Other Sources In what ways is this source possibly connected to other sources in this packet? Explain your responses.
Questions Using the first stage of the Question Formulation Technique create five possible questions about the source.

Title of Source:
Key Concepts/Main Ideas As you look over the material what are the “big ideas” that help make the source meaningful? How would you explain the source to someone who has not read the material?
Possible Themes Identify at least three possible themes which could be connected to this one source. This response should be specific to this one source.
Discipline Which field of study would this source fall into at a university? What types of professionals would investigate a question about this source? Explain your responses.
Possible Connections to Other Sources In what ways is this source possibly connected to other sources in this packet? Explain your responses.
Questions Using the first stage of the Question Formulation Technique create five possible questions about the source.

Title of Source:
Key Concepts/Main Ideas As you look over the material what are the “big ideas” that help make the source meaningful? How would you explain the source to someone who has not read the material?
Possible Themes Identify at least three possible themes which could be connected to this one source. This response should be specific to this one source.
Discipline Which field of study would this source fall into at a university? What types of professionals would investigate a question about this source? Explain your responses.
Possible Connections to Other Sources In what ways is this source possibly connected to other sources in this packet? Explain your responses.
Questions Using the first stage of the Question Formulation Technique create five possible questions about the source.

Title of Source:
Key Concepts/Main Ideas As you look over the material what are the “big ideas” that help make the source meaningful? How would you explain the source to someone who has not read the material?
Possible Themes Identify at least three possible themes which could be connected to this one source. This response should be specific to this one source.
Discipline Which field of study would this source fall into at a university? What types of professionals would investigate a question about this source? Explain your responses.
Possible Connections to Other Sources In what ways is this source possibly connected to other sources in this packet? Explain your responses.
Questions Using the first stage of the Question Formulation Technique create five possible questions about the source.

Post Analysis Reflection

Look over your work and identify the similar themes which you associated with four or more of the sources. Which themes could be connected to all six sources? Explain your answer by providing an explanation which references at least three sources.
Which sources had the strongest connections to each other? Explain your answer by providing an explanation which references at least four sources.
Look over your work regarding the five questions you created for each source. Which questions, or types of questions, appeared for more than one source? Explain your answer by providing an explanation which references at least two sources.
Having examined the sources, their themes, connections, disciplines, and lingering questions which two sources do you feel the strongest connection with? Explain your answer by connection you choice to the content of the two sources.	